

Cookie Statement

Internet browser has a feature called cookies. The cookies are small text files created on computer of website visitors which store information such as username, user's personal information, preferences for web pages, browsing session information, duration of visit of site etc. Some sites make use of the cookies. Generally, this information is used by websites to monitor website traffic and performance. This is also used for market research and to understand how frequently visitors use websites, what are their preferences, which are most popular pages etc. Our website does not collect or use cookies files created on visitors computer.